AGAIN SLAUGHTERED.

Ecranton Hitters Are Bewildered by the Star of Syracuse.

The Scranton hopefuls were again slaughtered yesterday afternoon at the ball park. An effort had been made to turn the luck of the club by placing Hoover in right field and Hess in left. The change, however, was not productive of encouraging results.

Delany pitched a good game but his support was not particularly brilliant. The fingers of the Scranton players in many instances appeared to have been thoroughly greased before they entered

Barnett, the Syracuse twirler, bewildered the majority of the batsmen of Cabill's nine, and proved throughout the game one of the most effective pitchers that the home players have been forced to face. Johnson picked balls out of the air with his usual case, allowing but one to slip through his fingers. The score:

The start was not good, Plaisted losing two strokes. He soon overcome this, however, and turned the first mark shead of Hosmer. The race for the second turn was nearly a dead heat, but Hosmer was quicker in turning and he made a gain of a boat's length. On the stretch for the final turn Plaisted ran his scull high and dry on a lobster trap, and it was several seconds before he could extricate himself from his position. Hosmer thus had an easy chance to win, and pulling a slow stroke he finished about two lengths in the lead. The course was about two and a half miles, with three turns. The time was 14m, 28s.
